Federal Rule of Evidence 404(b) ..... 5

ERVIN COHEN & JESSUP LLP

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

It is not enough that the pleading allegations Counter-Defendants wish to strike might paint them in a negative or unflattering light. Rather, in order for this Court to grant Counter-Defendants motion, the allegations must have “no logical connection to the controversy” and “no possible bearing on the subject matter of the litigation.” Here, the relevant allegations are directly relevant to the declaratory relief and fraud counterclaims and thus the motion must be denied.

Counterclaimants have alleged a claim for declaratory relief based on the parties’ dispute as to the nature of the agreed upon business relationship between them (Counterclaimants claim they only agreed for Counter-Defendants to serve as their agents and Counter-Defendants contend a joint venture or partnership agreement was reached). Thus, allegations that Counter-Defendants have a history of fabricating or conflating the true nature of their business dealings with other companies working in the same industry and improperly claiming ownership of assets to which they are not entitled is indisputably relevant and has a “logical connection” to the declaratory relief claim.

Counterclaimants have also alleged a fraud/rescission claim that any agreement to form a joint venture or partnership (which Counterclaimants deny ever existed) was induced by Counter-Defendants’ misrepresentations. Consequently, allegations that Counter-Defendants have demonstrated a pattern of defrauding individuals in similar circumstances is certainly an issue the Court is free to consider and at a minimum, has some “possible bearing” on the fraud claim.

Counter-Defendants’ Motion to strike the pleading allegations is doomed for a second reason: courts are clear that even if the relevant allegations were impertinent or scandalous (they are not), absent a concrete showing of prejudice, the motion must be denied. Here, Counter-Defendants have barely made any attempt to satisfy this requirement and ultimately fail in this regard.

1 Finally, as detailed below, both the statute of limitations and fraud affirmative 2 defenses are viable and well-plead. The motion should thus be denied in its entirety.

3 II. STANDARDS ON MOTION TO STRIKE

4 “Motions to strike are generally disfavored because they are often used as 5 delaying tactics and because of the limited importance of pleadings in federal 6 practice...A federal court will not exercise its discretion under Rule 12(f) to strike a 7 pleading unless the matters sought to be omitted have no possible relationship 8 to the controversy, may confuse the issues or otherwise prejudice a 9 party...Motions to strike generally will not be granted unless it is clear that the 10 matter to be stricken could not have any possible bearing on the subject matter 11 of the litigation...A court should not strike allegations supplying background or 12 historical material unless it is unduly prejudicial to the opponent...” Cortina v.
13 Goya Foods, Inc. (S.D. Cal. 2015) 94 F.Supp.3d 1174, 1182. (citations omitted, 14 emphasis added)

15 Courts “have held that a motion to strike matter from a complaint simply for 16 being redundant, immaterial, impertinent or scandalous should only be granted if 17 the matter has no logical connection to the controversy and may prejudice one 18 or more parties to the suit...Where the moving party cannot adequately 19 demonstrate such prejudice, courts frequently deny motions to strike even though 20 the offending matter literally was within one or more of the categories set forth in 21 Rule 12(f).” McRee v. Goldman (N.D. Cal. 2012) 2012 WL 929825 at *5.
22 (Citations omitted, emphasis added, italics in original).

23 Even allegations that are “distasteful, unsavory, and ultimately may have a 24 minimal degree of relevant to the issues and claims in this litigation” do not need to 25 be stricken. Citizens for Quality Education San Diego v. San Diego Unified School
26 District (S.D. Cal. 2018) 2018 WL 828099 at *4. “It is not enough that the matter 27 offends the sensibilities of the objecting party or the person who is the subject of the 28 statements in the pleading, if the challenged allegations describe acts or events that

1 are relevant to the action...A court must resolve any doubt as to the relevance of the 2 challenged allegations in favor of the non-moving party...For this reason, if there is 3 any doubt as to whether under any contingency the matter may raise an issue, the 4 motion may be denied.” Id. (citations omitted).

5 III. THE RELEVANT ALLEGATIONS SHOULD NOT BE STRICKEN

6 A. The Relevant Allegations Relate Directly to the Declaratory Relief
 7 Counterclaim, and at Bare Minimum, Have a Possible Relationship
 8 There to

9 Counterclaimants’ Third Counterclaim for Declaratory Relief seeks this 10 Court’s determination as to the nature of the business relationship that existed 11 between Counterclaimants and Counter-Defendants.

12 Counterclaimants’ allege that the only reason they began discussing any 13 business relationship with Counter-Defendants was because of fraudulent statements 14 made by Counter-Defendants to induce the formation of a business relationship.
 15 (Amended Counterclaim, ¶¶ 30-31). Counterclaimants also allege that the only 16 agreement ever reached between themselves and Counter-Defendants was for 17 Counter-Defendants to serve as master distributors (an agent who would locate and 18 source certain investors in exchange for a fee). (Amended Counterclaim, ¶¶ 38, 69).
 19 Counter-Defendants, for their part, contend that a much more significant partnership 20 or joint venture was reached such that Counter-Defendants are entitled to a portion 21 of the profits Counterclaimants realized in the Ace Hotel transaction. (Amended 22 Counterclaim, ¶ 70).

23 The nature of this counterclaim logically requires this Court to review and 24 analyze a bit of he-said, she-said, and to evaluate the parties’ communications, their 25 intent, and their reasonable interpretations of those communications. Given the 26 foregoing, the fact that Counter-Defendants have a history of deliberately 27 mischaracterizing and fabricating the true nature of an agreed upon business 28 relationship in order to improperly claim ownership of other’s assets has a direct

1 bearing on this claim.

2 Paragraph 1 of the Amended Counterclaim alleges that Counter-Defendant 3 Choi has done exactly what he is attempting in this lawsuit multiple times in the 4 past, namely “claiming unfounded ownership of [Counterclaimant’s] companies...
 5 and undeserved entitlement to [Counterclaimant’s] profits.” That Counter-6 Defendants have found themselves in this spot multiple times before, as alleged in 7 Paragraph 1, has a clear and logical connection to the claim. Similarly, the notion 8 that “Choi has an established pattern of practice of unilaterally attempting to create 9 and modify business relationships that were not agreed to by the other party”, as set 10 forth in Paragraph 50 of the Amended Counterclaim, also has a direct bearing and 11 high degree of relevance to this claim. In fact, it may turn out that some of the 12 details fleshed out in Paragraph 50 regarding Choi’s extraordinarily similar past 13 misdeeds may factor into this Court’s decision. Regardless, there is certainly at 14 least some connection because the pleadings allegations sought to be stricken and 15 the declaratory relief claim so the motion must be denied.<sup>1</sup>

16 B. The Subject Allegations Tie Directly to the Fraud Counterclaim
 17 and at Minimum Have Some Bearing on and Are Logically Related
 18 Thereto

19 Counterclaimants’ Fourth Counterclaim for Rescission Based on Fraud asks 20 this Court, to the extent it finds that Counterclaimants ever entered into any joint 21

22
 23 <sup>1</sup> The allegations of Choi’s “egregious personality flaws” in Paragraph 3 are 24 also relevant, especially given the context in which that phrase is used and the 25 subsequent allegations of the Amended Counterclaim. The “egregious personality 26 flaws” referred to Choi’s dishonesty and delusion which are detailed in Paragraphs 27 2, 30 and in the Fourth Counterclaim. Paragraph 3 states that Counterclaimants 28 “recognized some of Choi’s less egregious personality flaws early on and avoided entering into any partnership agreement with Choi and SRC.” This is the very heart of the declaratory relief counterclaim—that no joint venture or partnership was reached. Furthermore, the personality issues that led Counterclaimants to decide not to partner with Choi are detailed in Paragraph 36 and thus they too have bearing on this action.

1 venture or partnership agreement with Counter-Defendants, to rescind and reject
 2 that agreement on the grounds Counterclaimants' consent was induced by Counter-3 Defendants' fraud. Counterclaimants' allege that the only reason they ever began 4 discussing any type of business relationship with Counter-Defendants was 5 predicated on a variety of misrepresentations deliberately made to Counterclaimants.
 6 (Amended Counterclaim, ¶ 75).

7 The allegations in Paragraphs 1 and 50 that Choi had a prior history of 8 engaging in similar targeted fraudulent conduct is undeniably related to the fraud 9 claim. Under Federal Rule of Evidence 404(b), evidence of prior fraudulent acts is 10 admissible to prove "motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, 11 identity, or absence of mistake or accident." See e.g. International Business 12 Machines Corp. v. Brown (9th Cir. 1998) 124 F.3d 377 (evidence of prior fraud used 13 to prove knowledge and intent of future illegal enterprise). Evidence that Choi had 14 a regular practice of defrauding EB-5 investors to then claim ownership of the entity 15 or assets could be admissible to prove, inter alia, that Counter-Defendants knew the 16 nature of the business transaction to be other than joint venture or partnership, 17 reached out to Counterclaimants with the motivation into getting them into a joint 18 venture (and not some other business relationship) and or intended to defraud 19 Counterclaimants. See e.g. Fallon Min. Co, Inc. v. Caddell (9th Cir. 2003) 77 20 Fed.Appx. 416, 418 (evidence that joint venture's prior deal involving machine 21 ended "bitterly" and that its system failed was relevant and admissible in customer's 22 fraud and libel action against the joint venture to show joint venturer's intent, plan, 23 knowledge and absence of mistake).

24 Ultimately though, the analysis just proffered goes far beyond what is 25 required at this stage. The notion that a previous act of fraud, directed at similarly 26 situated individuals in the same industry, perpetrated through similar means to 27 obtain similar ends, would have some bearing on or relation to this fraud claim is 28 hardly a stretch. Furthermore, as detailed above, the motion must be denied unless

1 there is no relevance between the allegations and the action and any doubt must be 2 resolved in favor of Counterclaimants. Thus, unless this Court can unequivocally 3 state at this juncture that none of the similar fraudulent conduct alleged in 4 Paragraphs 1 or 50 has or could have any logical connection or relation to this 5 lawsuit, the motion must be denied.

6 C. Counter-Defendants Have Not Demonstrated Prejudice

7 Counter-Defendants must independently demonstrate that they will be 8 prejudiced if this Motion is not granted. The only argument they make is that “they 9 are potentially prejudicial to Choi, however, because they are part of the public 10 record and, while defamatory, will be published by Kim, et al., to potential investors 11 under the claim that the litigation privilege shields them from liability. (Motion, p.
 12 5). This argument fails for several reasons.

13 By their own admission, any prejudice they point to is purely “potential”.
 14 There is no evidence that Choi has suffered any actual prejudice, nor that Kim 15 engaged in the activity Choi suggests. Even if he had, however, this would still not 16 be prejudicial to Counter-Defendants. The fact that other lawsuits have been filed 17 against Choi in other jurisdictions are necessarily already part of the public record.
 18 So what Counter-Defendants are really expressing is their fear that this document 19 might direct interested parties to other public records that reflect other misdeeds.
 20 The notion that allegations in a pleading would be stricken simply because they 21 reference other public records defies the high burden needed to grant a 12(f) motion.
 22 Finally, as detailed above, these allegations are not gratuitous. The previous 23 behavior of targeted duplicity and habitual fraudulent behavior are directly relevant 24 to the declaratory relief and fraud counterclaims herein.

25 IV. THE AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES SHOULD NOT BE STRICKEN

26 A. The Statute of Limitations Defense is Well-Pleaded

27 “Fed R. Civ. P 8(c) determines whether the pleading of the limitations 28 defense was sufficient. Rule 8(c) provides, in pertinent part, that a party shall set

1 forth affirmatively...(a defense based upon the) statute of limitations. The key to 2 determining the sufficiency of pleading an affirmative defense is whether it gives 3 plaintiff fair notice of the defense.” Wyshak v. City Nat. Bank (9th Cir. 1979) 607 4 F.2d 824, 827.

5 Unless the defense is one that falls under Rule 9, there is no requirement that 6 a party plead an affirmative defense with particular specificity. Wong v. U.S. (9th 7 Cir. 2004) 373 F.3d 952, 969. It is furthermore well established that there is no 8 obligation to even identify the specific statute of limitations that applies or plead the 9 statute of limitations defense in any detail. See Belvedere Partnership, Ltd. v. SSI 10 Investment Management, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2010) 2010 WL 11508362 at * 3 (holding 11 that the bare assertion of the defense was acceptable and “although [defendant] does 12 not explicitly state what the applicable statute of limitations is, the lawsuit’s factual 13 and legal context provides [plaintiff] with fair notice by enabling [plaintiff] to 14 ascertain the applicable statute of limitations.”). Courts regularly find that 15 identifying the specific statute at issue is sufficient to give plaintiff notice. See e.g.
16 Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation v. Reis (C.D. Cal. 2013) 2013 WL 17 12126777 at *3.

18 Equally important, even if a statute of limitations defense is unlikely to 19 prevail, the Court should not strike it unless the Plaintiff can demonstrate prejudice.
20 Joe Hand Promotions, Inc. v. Dorsett (E.D. Cal. 2013) 2013 WL 1339231 at *5
21 (“Although it is unlikely Defendants could prevail on this [statute of limitations] 22 defense, the Court finds, again, that Plaintiff’s Motion to Strike is denied because 23 Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate prejudice.”)

24 Here, Defendants did not simply insert boilerplate affirmative defenses.
25 Rather, they limited their statute of limitations defense to the 2nd and 11th causes of 26 action, which are both for breaches of non-written contracts. And, they went 27 beyond the call of duty by identifying in the affirmative defense that the specific 28 statute of limitation that applied was C.C.P. §339 for breach of an oral contract.

1 Thus, by providing notice of the two claims that the statute of limitations could 2 apply to, and identifying the specific statute, Defendants have more than satisfied 3 their obligations under Fed. R. 8(c) and by limiting the statute of limitations to only 4 two of the sixteen total claims, there is no plausible prejudice Plaintiffs can 5 demonstrate (nor have they even attempted to do so).

6 Given the foregoing, the only way this Court can justifiably strike the statute 7 of limitations defense is if it believes, at this early stage, there is no set of plausible 8 facts that could theoretically support the defense. In truth, numerous allegations in 9 the First Amended Complaint and First Amended Counterclaim give rise to the 10 possibility that the statute of limitations has already run.

11 Plaintiff never specifies the exact date that the alleged joint venture was 12 formed, but seems to imply the time was around September 2015 (First Amended 13 Complaint, ¶¶ 38, 44). However, Plaintiff does specify that the alleged breaches of 14 contract occurred in 2017 and, more importantly, that the alleged breaches were 15 effectively the repudiation or disavowing of the alleged joint venture. (First 16 Amended Complaint, ¶¶ 71-73.

17 Notably, Plaintiff subsequently alleges that on October 25, 2015, “Kim 18 executed, on behalf of 8th Bridge, Inc., an Operating Agreement for MRE Fund GP 19 which stated that 8th Bridge Inc. would serve as its sole member and manager, with 20 Kim as its President. At the time, Kim did not disclose to Plaintiffs that MRE Fund 21 GP was under his sole control, and falsely told Plaintiffs that the Operating 22 Agreement was “not available yet.” (First Amended Complaint, ¶ 64). This alleged 23 act could be construed as a repudiation of whatever agreement the parties had 24 entered into, and thus, would be the exact same breach that Plaintiff alleges occurred 25 in 2017. It remains a factual question whether Plaintiffs knew these facts prior to 26 two years before this action was commenced in December 2017. Thus, this presents 27 a viable statute of limitations defense against the breach of contract claims, as the 28 alleged breach may have occurred, to Plaintiff’s knowledge, well before 2017 as 1 alleged.

2 Furthermore, in the First Amended Counterclaim, Counterclaimants allege 3 that an email was sent to Counter-Defendants more than two years before this case 4 was filed stating that many key points had not been reached, i.e., that 5 Counterclaimant did not believe any joint venture agreement existed at that time.
 6 (First Amended Counterclaim, ¶ 33). It is possible that additional evidence may 7 show that by December 2015, over two years prior to the filing of this action, 8 Plaintiff knew, or reasonably should have known, that Defendants was disavowing 9 and otherwise did not intend to honor whatever agreement Plaintiff believed it had 10 entered into with them. That too would present a statute of limitations defense that 11 should be decided on the merits.

12 B. The Fraud Defense is Well Pleaded

13 Defendants' fraud affirmative defense and Amended Counterclaim 14 sufficiently alleges the "who, what, when, where and how" that Plaintiffs demand.
 15 The "who" is clearly labeled as Moses Choi on behalf of himself and SRC. The 16 "how" is readily identified as in person, by telephone and by email. The "when" is 17 described as over a series of times between April 2015 through October 2015. The 18 "where" is admittedly absent in the affirmative defense but that, and more details on 19 the "when", are fleshed out in detail in the Amended Counterclaim. For instance, 20 Choi and Kim talked in person in late April 2015 in Washington D.C. (Amended 21 Counterclaim, ¶ 26); in person in China (Amended Counterclaim, ¶ 27), in person 22 multiple times in Los Angeles (Amended Counterclaim, ¶ 27); through email on 23 July 26, 2015 (Amended Counterclaim, ¶ 30). Finally, the "what" is explicitly 24 stated in the affirmative defense and throughout the Amended Counterclaim as three 25 primary categories of fraudulent representations: (1) Plaintiffs' experience in the 26 Chinese market; (2) the experience and accomplishments of Plaintiffs' foreign 27 agents; and (3) the experience and accomplishments of Plaintiffs' partner, Morrie 28 Berez.

ERVIN COHEN & JESSUP LLP

1 Counter-Defendants complain that Counterclaimants have failed to identify 2 and isolate what exactly was said, through what medium, on each relevant day 3 between April 2015 and October 2015. However, Counter-Defendants have not 4 provided any authority requiring this extra-extra-heightened degree of specificity.
 5 Counterclaimants have provided enough information to put Counter-Defendants on 6 notice and satisfy the heightened standards of Rule 9(b). That is sufficient.
 7 Similarly, Counterclaimants alleged in form and substance what Choi said and that 8 is also adequate. Counterclaimants are unaware of any requirement that they recite 9 Choi’s words verbatim and it is unreasonable, bordering on absurd, for Counter-10 Defendants to suggest that paraphrasing oral conversations from several years prior 11 is insufficient notice (notably, through the Amended Counterclaim, 12 Counterclaimants did make a point to frequently post verbatim what was 13 memorialized in emails and other writings).

14 V. CONCLUSION

15 For the reasons set forth herein, Counterclaimants respectfully request that the 16 motion be denied in its entirety. If this Court is inclined to grant any part of the 17 motion, Counterclaimants respectfully request leave to amend to add additional 18 information to support the affirmative defenses and rephrase the pleadings.
